As he grapples with the heartbreaking reality, his daughter sets on a mission to prove to him that according to her long-dead grandmother, death is not the end of life in African tradition. The man, who is a Christian, struggles to understand what his daughter is saying, thinking she is too young to understand his pain. On her part, the girl thinks he is too Christian to see beyond what his faith has taught him. Both father and child offer comfort to each other in the best way they know how as they race against time to spend every second with each other before death separates them forever. This daughter-daddy story explores questions of the afterlife, and both Christianity and African tradition offer no easy answers to the strongly bonded pair.	Drama	Heaven sound boring	107
